

Big Lottery cash is handed to charity

ALMOST £484,000 has been presented to Derbyshire group Women's Work by the Big Lottery Fund.

The money was given to the charity, which helps female sex workers turn around their lives, for The Bigger Difference project. It will work with women at risk of substance misuse or offending through prostitution.

Mayor of Derby Councillor Les Allen is pictured presenting a cheque for £483,492 from the Big Lottery Fund to the charity's chief executive Dionne Reid, the board of trustees and staff.